List of Editors

Disclaimer

Westcliff University provides this list as a resource only without endorsement or vetting of the claims made by the individuals/companies included.

Please note that you are under no obligation to select any editor from this list. You are free to find your own editor. This list is a guide only.

About Dissertation Editors

Editing doctoral research prior to publication is an important aspect of scholarly writing. Editors can commonly be expected to perform the following functions as part of the editing process:

- Grammar and Proofreading including such tasks as proofreading and checking grammar and mechanics. Spelling, punctuation, sentence structure, verb tense, word choice, pronoun referents, passive voice, clarity, as well as parallel and vague terminology should be noted. Run-on sentences and fragments should be corrected. Suggestions should be made for structural coherence, transitions, and document flow.

- Style and Format Editing of the document, for example: consistency; in-text citations, parenthetical statements, margins, headings, spacing, numbered or bulleted lists, figures and tables, appendices, and reference list formatting should be corrected. Formatting using APA seventh edition guidelines must be utilized.

- Citation to Reference Verification noting when citations are not in the reference section and matching references not in the body of the paper as citations.

- University-Specific Formatting to the Westcliff University Dissertation Template.

Editors should not change the integrity or meaning of the content, generate content, or delete portions of the content. Editors do not usually add missing information in reference sections but do note when additional information is needed.

Choosing an Editor

When choosing an editor:

- Discuss your specific needs and requirements (e.g., editor's availability, turnaround time).
- Ensure that the editor can meet your due date.
- Review the cost and get the agreement in writing.
- Ensure the editor stands behind his or her work.
- Know exactly what you will receive for your money.
- Use Zoom to interview potential editors.
- As follow-up, set up talk time by phone to make an informed decision.

When a student works with an editor, it is important that the editor is provided with a copy of the appropriate formatting requirements regarding the Westcliff University Deviations from APA as outlined in the WU Dissertation Template and that the editor knows that APA seventh edition is the required standard.

The most important rule of style in Strunk and White's Elements of Style is Rule 17: "Omit needless words." This is Professor Strunk's advice regarding this rule:

> Vigorous writing is concise. A sentence should contain no unnecessary words, a paragraph no unnecessary sentences, for the same reason that a drawing should have no unnecessary lines and a machine no unnecessary parts. This requires not that the writer make all his sentences short, or that he avoid all detail and treat his subjects only in outline, but that every word tell.

As your editor, I am thorough and exacting, strictly following APA formatting guidelines. Working with me is for people who want it perfect. I chisel and polish what you are saying until it is impeccably presented. I love editing!
